

Emerging Leaders Program

Candidates include both strong individual contributors with executive aspirations and those in managerial positions who are hoping to advance in the leadership phase of their career. Participants should have a strong desire to achieve professional excellence.

The Emerging Leaders Program supports professionals with higher level aspirations who are currently individual contributors or managers of a team.

This series will hone the skills new leaders need to move into higher levels of management, successfully navigate challenges they may encounter as leaders, and ensure their strategic climb upward on the organizational ladder.

This is what our 6-modules leadership training program achieves. Participants will sharpen the hard and soft skills necessary for effective leadership within the context of the rising professional.

This course will help you master topics such as executive presence and managerial effectiveness, organizational culture, negotiation strategy, mentorship, feedback, while building successful teams – in addition we address relevant potential challenges and obstacles that may be in the way.

Through education, networking, and mentoring opportunities, we help you become a better leader to manage change with ease. It is also a perfect opportunity for those who are looking to explore new executive paths!
